I do not support allowing private contractors the ability to do work that should be done by government agencies. Too often the private contractors provide poorer service, are not less expensive, and eventually end up costing the taxpayer even more. It is clear why private companies cost more; they have executive/manager salaries to pay and stock holders to satisfy. In addition, they usually provide poor pay to their employees. None of this goes towards providing quality service. The government does not have these wasteful expenses. All funds go to providing the services and providing fair salaries to the workers. Time and time again, privatization of government services had been shown to be a bad deal for taxpayers, and a boon for private company profits. As a customer of the DMV, and a Connecticut tax payer, I am 100% against allowing private contractors to do the work currently being performed by government employees.

Respectfully,
